Two seniors receive Fulbright Awards to teach and study abroad

Two graduating seniors were selected for prestigious awards through the 2010-11 Fulbright U.S. Student Program competition. Mary A. Howard, an economics and English (literature) double major, will teach English at a public school in South Korea during the upcoming academic year as recipient of an English Teaching Assistantship grant. Danielle M. Shoever’s grant will allow her to travel to Spain to teach English to high school students in Madrid. Shoever, a double major in English (writing) and Spanish and a Media Fellow, will also lead a creative writing group that will focus on food literature and culture.

For the fourth consecutive year, DePauw is listed among the Top Producers of Fulbright Awards for U.S. Students by the Chronicle of Higher Education.

Fall’s entering class drawn from a record number of applications

Six hundred fifty-nine students have accepted DePauw’s offer of admission for the fall semester. The incoming class will include a record-high 89 new international students (13.5 percent of the class) and a total of 124 undergraduates from multicultural backgrounds (more than 18 percent of the class). Members of the Class of 2014 will come to campus from 36 states and 23 countries.

The University received an all-time high of 5,328 applications for the fall 2010 entering class, a 12.7 percent increase over 4,723 applications last year.

Student news highlights

Junior Bridget C. Parker and freshman Patrick M. Sporanza, both percussion majors in the School of Music, were selected to participate in the National Collegiate Wind Ensemble. They performed a concert with the 76-member ensemble at Carnegie Hall on May 30. Parker, who made her second appearance with the national ensemble, and Sporanza are both students of Amy Lynn Barber, professor of music, and members of the DePauw University Band.

Senior Timothy J. Martin, a Bonner Scholar, was named Green Castle’s Green Citizen of the Year at the inaugural Sustainable Green Castle Celebration on May 6. Martin took the lead to recreate the Green Castle Community Garden and serves as its first director. The DePauw Environmental Club also was recognized at the event.

Winners of the 2010 DePauw University School of Music Concerto Competition were Ariel C. Detwiler, bassoon (student of Kara M. Stolle); Kelly J. Houpit, viola (student of Nicole M. Brockmann); James J. Richardson, organ (student of Carla G. Edwards); Joshua R. Rushing, marimba (student of Amy Lynn Barber); Esther Y. Shim, violin (student of Dan J. Birzer); and Carl E. Frank, baritone, and freshman.

Visitors to campus in 2009-10 included:

The Hampton and Esther Boswell Symposium on School Reform and Social Justice featured Thomas Bloch, former CEO of H&R Block who is now a seventh-grade teacher and board president of a charter school in Kansas City, Mo.; Howard Fuller, director of Institute for the Transformation of Learning at Marquette University, co-founder of the Black Alliance for Educational Options and former superintendent of schools in Milwaukee, Wis.; Bob Herbert, reporter for The New York Times; and Marcus C. Robinson ’94, founder, principal and CEO of Charles A. Tindley Accelerated Charter School in Indianapolis, on Nov. 4-5.

R. B. Brenner, Pulitzer Prize-winning reporter and senior editor for The Washington Post, was the Media Fellows speaker on March 9.

Howard Dean, former chairman of the Democratic National Committee, and Karl Rove, former chief political adviser to President George W. Bush, presented the Timothy and Sharon Ubben Debate on Sept. 11.

Dr. David Fraser, co-discoverer of Legionnaire’s disease and a pioneer in the teaching of public and global health to undergraduates, gave the DePauw Global Health Initiative Lecture on Sept. 22.

Angie R. Hicks ’95, founder and chief marketing officer of Angie’s List, gave the Robert C. McDermond Honorary Lecture on Oct. 14.

The James & Marlou Kitty Writers Series featured readings by Ron Carlson, renowned author of 10 books of fiction, who appeared in conjunction with AWP Fest 2009: Art & Power, on Nov. 5; Anselm Gittmann, GLCA Award-winning poet, on April 7; Aleksandra Hemon, award-winning Bosnian-American author of The Lazarus Project and recipient of a MacArthur “Genius” Grant, on Feb. 24; Khaled Mattawa, Libyan-born poet and writer, on Oct. 14; Honor Moore, poet, playwright, theater critic and biographer, on Sept. 30; Scott Raab, nonfiction writer for magazines and resident on Nov. 16; Nick Reding, author of Mothership: The Death and Life of an American Small Town, on March 10; Crystal Williams, award-winning poet and Mary R. Field Distinguished Visiting Writer at DePauw during the spring semester, on April 28.

Bakari Kitwana, senior media fellow at think tank The James-town Project and author of the forthcoming book Hip-Hop Activism in the Obama Era, gave two lectures on Sept. 15.

E.W. de Klerk, former president of South Africa who shared the Nobel Peace Prize with Nelson Mandela for their ef- forts to end apartheid, gave a Timothy and Sharon Ubben Lecture on May 7.

Jill LePore, Harvard University professor of history and staff writer for The New Yorker, gave the Horizon Lecture on Sept. 17.

Yu-chen Ma, professor at National Tsing Hua University, Taipei, spoke and conducted an art workshop in the Richard E. Peder Art Center on April 5.

Continued on back
Visitors to campus (continued)

Three named Woodrow Wilson Teaching Fellows

Two DePauw alumni and a graduating senior were among the 80 new Woodrow Wilson Indiana Teaching Fellows – the “Rhodes Scholars of teaching” – selected by the Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation of Princeton, N.J. Each Fellow receives a $30,000 stipend to complete a special intensive master’s program in teacher preparation, and Fellows make a commitment to teach for at least three years in a high-need urban or rural school in Indiana.

Andrew M. Bever ’08, who majored in physics and was a Science Research Fellow and president of the Physics Club at DePauw, is pursuing a master’s degree in physics at the University of Indianapolis. Amanda N. Hendricks ’09, who majored in biology and is a naturalist intern with Indiana Dunes Environmental Learning Center, is enrolled in a master’s program at the University of Indianapolis. Kaley E. Robbins ’10, a mathematics and Spanish double major with a minor in education studies and the creator and coordinator of DePauw’s Special Student Friend program, is enrolled at University of Indianapolis.

Three faculty members – Mary P. Dixon, professor and chair of economics and management; Carl A. Huffman, Robert Stockwell Professor of Greek Languages and Literature and professor of classical studies; and Paul B. Watt, Walter E. Bundy Professor of Religious Studies and professor of Asian studies and chair of the religious studies department – are this year’s recipients of the Mr. and Mrs. Fred C. Tucker Jr. Distinguished Career Award, which recognizes outstanding faculty members who have made notable contributions to DePauw through their commitments to students, teaching excellence, their chosen disciplines and service to the University.

Tamar A. Beaubouef, assistant professor of education studies and sociology and chair of the education studies department, and Wade N. Hazeld, Winona H. Welch Professor of Biology – are the 2010 winners of the Edwin L. Minor Jr. Scholarship award. Members of minority faculty, students – collaborated on an article, “Forest composition, leaf litter, and songbird communities in oak- vs. maple-dominated forests in the eastern United States,” that was published in the journal Forest Ecology and Management. The research was conducted at DePauw.

Jeffrey L. Harmening ’89, associate professor of religious studies and professor of English, was one of three leaders of the Science Fiction Foundation’s SF Criticism Masterclass conducted at Middlesex University in London from June 11-13.

Pauline A. Ota, assistant professor of art, has been awarded a summer research grant by the Japan Foundation, which she will use to spend 45 days in Japan during June and July conducting research at archives and museums in Tokyo and Kyoto.

Paul B. Watt, Walter E. Bundy Professor of Religious Studies and professor of Asian Studies, was awarded a Distinguished Service Award from ASIANetwork. Watt, a member of the organization’s board, is only the fourth recipient of the award in ASIANetwork’s 20-year history.

Support the DePauw Annual Fund by June 30

The heart of a great university is its students, faculty members and loyal donors. Now is the time to support DePauw; your gift is more important than ever. To make a gift to the DePauw Annual Fund by June 30, visit www.depauw.edu/give, or call the Annual Fund staff at 800-446-5298.

Sports shorts

DePauw captured the 2009-10 Southern Collegiate Athletic Conference President’s Trophy by its largest-ever margin, 127.5 points. DePauw has won the last five SCAC all-sports trophies and six in its 12 years of SCAC competition. DePauw is only the third school in the history of the conference (CAC or SCAC) to put together a President’s Trophy win streak of five or more years.

The 10th-ranked softball team earned an at-large spot in the 60-team NCAA Division III Softball Championship field. The second-seeded host Tigers won the Greensville Regional and advanced to the Division III Finals where they finished in a tie for fifth in the nation and with a 49-9 record. “Three DePauw student-athletes competed at the NCAA Division III Women’s Track and Field Championships. Senior Lauren Reich finished third in the 5,000 meters and earned all-America honors after finishing ninth in the 1,500 meters. Senior Nicole Stein broke her own school record in the 400-meter hurdles and garnered all-America honors with a fourth-place finish. Junior Courtney Lauer also earned all-America honors and broke her own school record in the heptathlon after finishing sixth in Division III. ‘Senior pitcher Megan Soultz was a third team softball all-America selection after recording a 29-7 record with a 1.51 earned run average. She set Division III all-time records for career games pitched (151), games started as a pitcher (148) and innings pitched (899). She also tied for second in Division III history in complete games (115), tied for third in wins (113) and fourth in shutouts (48).”

The women’s tennis team finished with a 20-5 record, including a third straight Southern Collegiate Athletic Conference title. DePauw earned a first-round bye in the NCAA Division III Championships but lost to John Hopkins in the second round. Junior Janelle Arita earned a spot in the Division III Singles Championship as did the duo of seniors Greer Mackie and Kayla Smith in the Doubles Championship. Each lost in the opening round of the tournament.