

Dear DePauw Students,

The following pages provide a tentative listing of instructional modes for DePauw course offerings for the fall 2020 term. Please note that there are many course options available for on-campus students and for remote students. In fact, almost 70% of our fall courses will be available to both types of learners.

The following key will be helpful to understanding the course listing:

- Mixed – These courses may be taken by remote learners and on-campus learners. The courses will typically include a mix of online and face to face instruction. However, online alternatives will be provided for remote learners who cannot attend class in person.
- Remote – These courses will be offered using fully online instruction; however, these courses are available to both remote learners and on-campus learners (who will take the courses in an online format from on-campus).
- Face to Face – These courses will include a face to face component that requires on-campus participation at least part of the time. In some cases, these courses may meet in-person as a full class, or in smaller groups, during all or most class sessions. However, in other cases, the courses will include both in-person and online instruction. Although these courses are not generally open to remote learners, faculty will provide special permission for remote students to take these courses in special circumstances. Special advisors will be prepared to assist remote learners who need help in exploring options.
- TBA (To Be Announced) – The instructional mode for about 5% of our courses is listed as TBA. We expect to finalize instructional modes for all courses within the next week.

If you are planning to attend classes from on-campus, or near campus, you are eligible to enroll in any type of course. If you are planning to attend class remotely you are eligible to enroll in Mixed classes and Remote classes unless you have special permission to take a Face to Face class.

This following list does not include information about First Year Seminar Courses because we will use a special process to pair new students with seminars (we are already working with first year students on this process.) Rest assured that we will have a range of options for First Year Seminars.

First Year students will receive a separate communication in early July with a subset of courses that are typically taken by first year students. If you are a first year student, don't worry if the list below seems overwhelming. There will be plenty of guidance to help you request courses in the coming weeks.

Upper class students will receive information from the Registrar's office about adjusting their course schedules as well. We will provide an opportunity for all upper class students to adjust their schedules starting in the middle of July.

Best,

Dave Berque
VP for Academic Affairs
